

One Thousand May Be Dead
From Flood Which Followed
Big Cloudburst in Texas

San Antonio devastated by River's Rise Caused by heavy Rain. Ten feet of water covering business district. Residents fleeing for their safety.

CUT OFF FROM COMMUNICATION
BY TRAIN, TROLLEY AND WIRE

Tornado accompanied downpour in some sections. Martial Law Proclaimed. Doctors and Red Cross Mobilized and rushed to the scene.

By International News Service.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 10—The estimates of the dead running as high as one thousand and property damage believed to exceed $5,000,000 this city today was in the grip of the worst flood in its history.
Every building in the business district stood in water ten feet deep during the high water mark of the raging waters while a vast section of the residential section was submerged.
Five bridges spanning the San Antonio river, in the center of the city, were destroyed by the waters. Telephone and telegraph communication, trolley service and electric lights and power were out of commission.
The three newspapers were flooded and were unable to publish, and with no news facilities, wild rumors filled the city and relief work was badly handicapped.
Martial law was asked of Colonel Thomas H. Slavin, chief of staff of the eighth corps area, and was to be granted.
Soldiers from Fort Sam Houston were rushed to the city to prevent looting.
Red Cross workers were ordered to the city. Eighth Corps under commander General John Hines, were mobilized to assist in the relief work.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 10—Families in the lowlands were rushing from their homes here today to seek safety from the waters of a cloudburst which broke with great fury over this city and surrounding territory early today. Over ten inches of water has fallen and the Colorado river is rising in a manner to cause alarm. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas bridge at Flugerville has been washed out. Creer Moor is reported inundated. The great Austin dam in the Colorado river is being anxiously watched and telephone lines are being kept clear to flash warnings at the first sign of danger.
Six negroes were reported injured at Flugerville where a tornado accompanied the rain.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 10—Troops were patrolling the streets here today following a sudden overflow of the San Antonio river and Alazan Creek which has inundated parts of the city to a depth of 4 to 8 feet.
Five persons were reported missing early today but no accurate information concerning casualties, if any, or the extent of the damage is available.
The flood which came suddenly, is the result of an all day rain that poured torrents of water into the streams. The flood broke over the banks of the San Antonio river shortly after midnight this morning and began pouring through the streets.
Early today an area of many blocks in extent was under water. The deepest water is in the business district St. Marys, Houston and Soledad streets being chiefly affected.

Chaplin Weeps at Greeting
Extended by Staid London

LONDON, Sept. 9—A welcome exceeding anything ever given to royalty was accorded Charlie Chaplin, the famous American screen comedian when he arrived in London today from New York.
The screen star wept at the cordiality of the tremendous ovation and finally had to be rescued from the immense crowd by a detachment of police.
Despite the large force of police the crowd broke through the barriers when Chaplin arrived at Waterloo station.
Thousands of men, women and children surged forward attempting to embrace the comedian and shake him by the hand. There were shouts of "Hello Charlie," and "Don't throw any pies."
Charlie was amazed although he had received an ovation at Cherbourg when the liner Olympic touched that port gave him a foretaste of what to expect in England—his native land.
Charlie stood in the door of the railway car and smiled at his English admirers as they surged around him with shouts and cries of adulation. Then his emotion overcame him and he wept.
Eventually a dozen policemen rescued the comedian from a crush which rivalled anything ever seen upon the screen. The policemen picked up the diminutive comedian and bore him upon their shoulders through the crowd while the noise doubled and Charlie waved his hat.
Charlie was finally placed in a waiting limousine and was driven to the Ritz Hotel between lanes of cheering people.
"It was the greatest thing I ever saw," said Charlie mopping his face at the hotel.
The comedian will be entertained by many fashionable families during his stay.

Road Improvement Makes
Strides in Lower Bucks

Commissioners of Bucks County Co-operating With State Highway Department in Rebuilding Main Traffic Arteries in the County

Road improvement in Bucks County during the past year has taken wonderful strides. The far-sighted policy of the Bucks County Commission on the part of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department has resulted in many of the main arteries of travel being rebuilt and a general road improvement.
It will cost Bucks county a considerable sum, especially for the Philadelphia-Pocono highway on which bills for land damages and bridge work will have to be paid by the county, but the policy of the Commissioners has been to co-operate with the State, feeling that it is a wise step to pay this comparatively small share when the State is willing to spend millions here.
County Solicitor Henry A. James, in a recent interview discussed these questions and the work done and to be done on the Lansdale-Doylestown highway, the Philadelphia-Easton highway, and the Lincoln Highway.
"In the lower end of the county, the Lincoln Highway is being reconstructed. A very bad curve was eliminated where this road enters Bucks county and the work has fast progressed on the part from the Philadelphia county line to the bridge over the Nesaminy at Oakford. Here, the county will be required to build a large bridge, about 300 feet long. The present bridge is an old frame covered one and inadequate for even the present travel, much less the travel which will be on this road after it is completed.
"After leaving this bridge, the route will be through the meadow on the east side of the railroad, passing through Parkland, coming out of South Langhorne, and from there following the route of a township road, through the property of Swope brothers, and then through two other properties, coming out on the present Lincoln Highway, through the property of Howard Thompson. This was considered necessary, owing to the fact that two dangerous railroad crossings are eliminated; one a very bad grade crossing. The road will be widened in many places. The concrete will be laid to the width of 20 feet, and when completed, will be even more traveled than heretofore.
"The state is spending in contracts awarded, within the last year in Bucks county, over two millions of dollars, and it is gratifying to know that we are getting as many miles of concrete road as any part of the state.
"The policy of the Commissioners has been to aid and assist the Highway Department in every way possible. Their idea is that it would be bad policy to hold back and refuse to spend a few thousand dollars in public improvements for the benefit of the whole county, when the state is willing to spend from $50,000 to $70,000 a mile in the construction of highways. Some land owners are affected by the changes but when the roads are completed, it will surely be seen that the benefits and advantages accruing will, in most instances, more than account for the loss occasioned by the taking of land.
"The state is also building a concrete road from Morrisville to Bristol. The road through Morrisville, has been graded and will soon be concreted. Several miles of this road have already been completed.
In a general way, Bucks county is to be congratulated over the fact that the State Highway Department has been generous enough to us to expend a large sum of money for the permanent improvement of our roads and when they are completed, we will probably have the best system of roads in the state.
Much road work has been done in the middle and upper end of the county. Numerous bridges have been rebuilt and new ones constructed. Dangerous curves in roads have been eliminated.

Judge Ryan Sentences
3 Chicken Thieves

"I am not sure but that it would be a good thing for you three young men if I should suspend sentence in this case, but it would not be a good thing for the community in which you live and for Bucks county."
Thus spoke Judge William C. Ryan when he sentenced Albert Rosenberger, John Rosenberger, and H. Pearson Loux, three Bucks county youths, living in New Britain and Hilltown townships. They pleaded guilty to steal 22 dozen eggs and some chickens from 4 farmers in a night automobile raid. Their sentences were $50 fines and imprisonment in the Bucks County Prison for three months.
"I cannot understand what young men like you mean in doing such things, in raiding chicken houses at night. The maximum sentence for felonious entry is ten years, but I will not impose the limit. I might send you to the Huntingdon Reformatory, but I shall not do that. I will not, however, suspend sentence."
Along this line Judge Ryan spoke to the youths before sentence was pronounced.
They were charged with stealing chickens from the farms of Henry K. Fretz, Frank Moll, John Thierolf, Detweiler Brothers, and from John Leatherman on the night of August 26. These farms are in Hilltown and New Britain townships.
On the witness stand it was related how the boys had been in Doylestown with the Rosenberger machine on the evening of August 26. They planned their raid that night and stopped first at the farm of Henry K. Fretz, where they stole the eggs and some chickens (Continued on Page Four.)

Courier's Hospital Forum
Opinions of residents of Bristol and vicinity as to the advisability of establishing a smaller Community Hospital here to replace the Harriman institution, which was found too expensive to operate.
A free and open discussion of the subject through these columns is solicited.

"Most emphatically do I approve of the establishment of a hospital in Bristol," said Louis Dries, the Mill street house furnishing merchant to a Courier man today. "Establishment of a hospital in Bristol, does not, however, quite express my meaning and desire," he continued. "I want to see the hospital work which has been carried on in Bristol for the past two years continued. I do not think that the people of Bristol should allow it to be abandoned. None of them who have the proper public and philanthropic spirit will.
"I for one, stand ready to do my share toward the continuance of that effort. Times being what they are, I cannot at present offer more than my share but it stands as my promise to the management of the proposed hospital that, if it is established and business conditions improve, I will gladly and voluntarily, do more than my share, to the extent of doubling, and even tripling my contribution.

"If the hospital management so desires, I will assist in equipping the new institution to the best of my ability. I have no doubt that I can secure whatever unit is needed at cost price for so worthy an object, and I may even be able to secure it at half-cost, or possibly better.
"The Harriman Hospital has been of inestimable benefit to Bristol and to the sick and afflicted and the ministrations so well and so nobly carried on there should not be allowed to lapse. As far as I am concerned, and as far as are concerned any persons over whom I have influence, it will not be."

Dr. "Jim" Greggerson Will Deliver Health Message at Forrest Theatre

NO ADMISSION CHARGE

Dr. James G. Greggerson, a foremost exponent of the science of healing and health known as "chiropractic" will deliver a lecture at the Forrest Theatre, Bristol, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.
The people of Bristol have been invited to attend and hear the message of health and happiness which Dr. Greggerson will deliver. There will be no admission charge, nor will there be any collection or solicitation of contributions, or anything of that nature. It is to be purely a gratuitous exposition of the principles of chiropractic and a narration of its relation to human health and the general art of healing.
The arrangements for the local meeting have been made by Dr. W. B. Martindell, whose offices for the giving of chiropractic adjustments are in the Forrest Theatre Building.
Dr. Greggerson, familiarly known in the chiropractic profession and to thousands who have derived inestimable benefit from the healing art discovered by B. C. Palmer, as "Jim" Greggerson, will be the guest, while here, of Dr. Martindell, his life-time friend. Dr. Martindell will have as other guests a score or so of the leading chiropractic practitioners of the East. Dr. Martindell will be the host at a dinner which will be given in Dr. Greggerson's honor at the Delaware House tomorrow after the meeting.

Delegations of practitioners and users of chiropractic are coming from Philadelphia, Trenton, Newark, New York, Burlington and other places, to hear and greet Dr. Greggerson. Dr. Greggerson is starting a lecture tour which will cover much of the country and tomorrow is his first speaking date on this tour.

The fact that elements in several of the states of the union are opposing Chiropractic, has caused those interested in the advancement of the science to arrange this educational campaign. The object is to teach the people just what Chiropractic means, what it is and what it stands for. With the people really desiring the benefits to be derived from this science, the legislation desired can be enacted.

It is the contention of the Chiropractors that the application of their science will do more to prevent the causes of human ills than any cures which might be advocated after the system becomes run down.

They claim that an ounce of prevention is what the human race needs today, and they go further and state in terms that are unqualified that Chiropractic furnishes that necessary prevention, and that is the greatest boon given to mankind in the century.

Cures which have been effected by the spinal adjustments of Chiropractors, have in many instances appeared almost miraculous to the lay mind but the Chiropractor never seeks to surround himself with a halo of mystery. He states frankly that nature makes the cure, and that the part played by the Chiropractor is a small one.

Trenton Movie Men
Won't Try Tomorrow

No Sunday Shows Pending Hearing on Injunction They Ask

SHERIFF ON GUARD

There will be no Sunday shows in the Trenton moving picture theatres tomorrow, but the movie men are still determined to have their houses open on the Sabbath.
They have secured from Chancellor Walker a rule requiring Sheriff Firth who has gone over the heads of the Trenton police in stopping Sunday pictures, to show cause at the state house on Tuesday, September 20, why he should not be permanently enjoined from interfering with Sunday shows.
The rule granted does not restrain the county authorities from temporarily stopping Sunday movies, and the situation remains the same until the hearing on the rule.
The application on behalf of the theatre men argued that the action of the sheriff in stopping the shows last Sunday was in excess of his powers, and was an irreparable injury to the complainants.
There will probably be no attempt made to conduct any performances at the local theatres tomorrow, or the Sunday following, in view of the application for an injunction by the theatrical men.
The management of the Capitol and Trent theatres is today advising that no performances will be given tomorrow, and State street theatre and various motion picture houses under the direction and ownership of the Hildinger interests adopted the same course.
In their announcement of the closing of the Trent and Capitol theatres tomorrow, the owners assert they are actuated by a desire to protect their patrons from the annoyance of a possible interruption such as occurred last Sunday, when the deputies of Sheriff Walter Firth stopped the production.
Sheriff Firth, stated that he would follow the same tactics adopted last Sunday, and would post his deputies at the various houses to see that no attempt was made to open them.
In making this announcement the sheriff commented upon a communication addressed to him by Commissioner LaBarre relative to the employment of the local police forces by the sheriff, and stating that he (the commissioner) could not order the police as a body to place themselves under the jurisdiction of the sheriff.
"I had hoped for some action by Commissioner LaBarre, that would enable me to use the Trenton police," said the sheriff. "As this permission has not been forthcoming, there is nothing left for me to do but employ the same deputies and adopt the same tactics as I used last Sunday. These men have not been released, and stand ready to serve. To employ individually the members of the police department would entail a great amount of work, and necessitate my ignoring the deputies that served me in an emergency, and did their work well. They will be on hand in the event that the theatres attempt to open."

Fines Schoolmaster

Squire Inflicts Costs on Principal of Ancient Buckingham School

14 WHACKS WITH RULER

Time was when the country schoolmaster taught to the tune of the hickory stick,—but those times have gone. Perhaps time has passed so slowly over the Hughesian Free School, at Buckingham, on the Old York Road, three miles from Doylestown, and left so slight an imprint upon its structure, that the rule of the ruler over the unruly pupil may still be a recognized part of the principles of school government there.
Anyway, Wilson Brown, now principal of this ancient temple of learning, has been accused of resorting to the time-honored practices of pupil control. The law, however, recognizes the modern trend of education, and has fined him.
Brown was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Robert G. Hendricks, of Doylestown, on a charge of having inflicted corporal punishment on Earl Johnson, a nine-year-old colored pupil, who is said to have become unruly and disobeyed the teacher's orders. The principal is alleged to have admitted to the justice that he held the boy between his legs and whopped him twelve times with a 14-inch ruler.

Principal Brown, who is 27 years of age, is the second Bucks County school teacher to be haled up for using the old-time punishment on an unruly scholar.
The boy did not obey the order given by a teacher that he should leave the schoolroom during recess. The boy, it was testified by the teachers in the school, ran away from them when they gave him orders.
Magistrate Hendricks said that he saw the welts on the boy's body made by the ruler and in his opinion the beating was entirely too much for a nine-year-old lad. However, he decided the teacher had the right to punish the boy, but he placed the costs on the principal in order to set an example for teachers who may go over the limit in whipping children.

Friends School Wants
Exemption From Taxes

Whether the Friends Boarding Home under the control of the Bucks County Quarterly meeting, will pay county taxes in the future, will be known when Judge William C. Ryan hands down his decision in the case that was heard before at a session of miscellaneous court, in Doylestown.

The case was an appeal from a decision of the Bucks County Commissioners refusing to exempt from taxes the Friends' Boarding Home, located in Newtown. The County Commissioners allege that it is not wholly a charitable institution and that therefore taxes must be paid.

The home is assessed at $12,000. Recently the State refused to exempt a long list of sectarian institutions from taxation, and it is believed the County Commissioners are taking the same stand on the matter.

The only witness called in the case was J. Wilmer Lundy, of Newtown, treasurer of the board of directors of the home. County Solicitor Henry A. James, of Doylestown, represented the County Commissioners.

Mr. Lundy gave figures showing the financial condition of the home. He said that during a period of years, ending this year, the receipts at the home had amounted to $109,753.30 and the expenditure had been recorded as $109,271.70, showing a surplus at the present time of $581.60. This was due he said to the year not being ended and to part of a regular endowment fund recently received.

Treasurer Lundy testified that the sale of a dwelling house on the grounds last year, amounting to several thousand dollars, saved the home from a great deficit.

Inmates at the home pay board ranging from $4 a week to $12 a week it was testified. The amount depends upon the circumstances of the families. It was stated the inmates are sent there by families or Friends' Meetings and that the persons themselves have no money.

The case was held under advisement.

Taxpayers' Protest Caused Decision Reached at Meeting Last Night

BOND ISSUE VOIDED

Nothing Further Will be Done on Project or With the Site

The project of building a school house at Croydon has been abandoned for the present by the Bristol Township School Board. The bond issue advertised twice will not be issued and the legislation thus far enacted by the township school board relative to the building of the proposed school has been scrapped.

This action was decided upon at a meeting of the board in the Harriman school last night. It was taken in compliance with the expressed wishes of a large number of township taxpayers.

The Bristol Township School Board has had a strenuous time over the new school proposition. First, bids were advertised for the purchase of $40,000 bond issue. The bond issue was for the erection of a new school building at Croydon. The bonds were to bear interest of five and-half per cent. At the stated time no bids were received for the bonds.

The Board met and awarded the contract for the building of a four-room brick school house at Croydon to John H. Page & Sons of Andalusia, for $33,397. It was to be located on ground which the board had purchased.

John Smoyer, of Bristol, was awarded the contract for the heating and ventilation systems.

Then a new issue was prepared, carrying interest at six per cent. This was advertised and bids were opened for this on Friday evening, September 2nd. The bids were not announced.

In the meantime, opposition to the erection of a school at Croydon began to crystallize, although none of this opposition had developed to any extent previous to this time. The board had gone ahead with the plans and was under the impression that it was acting according with a popular demand.

Friday evening, September 2nd, the tax payers of the township, were invited by the board to meet in the Harriman school and voice their opinions. They did so, to the number of about ninety and petitions signed by a large number of taxpayers were presented, in opposition to the proposal.

The school board, after hearing the pros and cons, announced that it would consider the matter and definitely decide at a special meeting of the board to be held last evening.

The meeting was held with all of the directors present except Mr. Weik, of Edgely. The board decided not to build the schoolhouse at the present time.

Ira C. Brown, president of the board today said that both Mr. Brown and Mr. Smoyer had agreed not to file claims for damages against the board for failure to carry out their contracts.

Pastor Found Beach Party
Was For His Birthday

Friends of the Rev. T. Bahn Thomas, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, Bristol gave him a birthday surprise during his sojourn at Ocean Grove last week.

Last Friday was his birthday and friends at the Amherst House, where he was stopping, arranged a beach party. Mr. Thomas was lured into attending and all went to the foot of Pitman Avenue at 9 P. M.

While fun and sociability reigned, and Pastor Thomas was all oblivious to the fact that the party was anything else than a beach party of the ordinary variety, Walter W. Green, the pastor's brother-in-law, arose and launched forth a speech. The burden of the speech seemed to be Heinz and his 57 varieties. Pastor Thomas, not being interested in the pickle manufacturer's products, paid somewhat scant attention, until he became conscious that he, and no Mr. Heinz, was the possessor of the 57 varieties to which the speaker alluded. In other words, the varieties were the years which Mr. Thomas enumerates in his lifetime's record.

The finale of the speech was when Mr. Green handed him a beautiful card on which were inscribed the names of all the participants in the party.

To cap it, he was handed a handsome Wallace Nutting picture, entitled, "Dixville Shadows." When called upon for a response, Mr. Thomas confessed himself too surprised to comply.

The party adjourned from the beach at 10:30, and at the hotel found a large watermelon awaiting to be cut and eaten.

VETERAN EMPLOYMENT

The plan which former service men have adopted in several cities of conducting an employment bureau of their own should be followed generally. Or, the business of finding work for these patriots should be carried on by the Red Cross, or some reliable organization. Though no bureau or organization could create much work, it could see that service men receive preference as to employment.

In a few places the service men out of work have paraded the streets as a rebuke to the people, and have carried banners displaying pertinent sentences. Such a demonstration is scarcely creditable to the bravery and sound sense of the men who served their country with great courage. The other method, of undertaking to locate vacant positions and obtaining preference for service men is more consistent with their record. Manufacturing and business concerns will be only too glad to select these gallant men above others.

WINTER UNEMPLOYMENT

Most serious consideration must be given, in the next month or so, to providing means of livelihood to needy workmen. Although business has improved considerably since August 15, and it will continue to stabilize rapidly from now on, the actual state of commerce from November 1 to March 1 is problematical. Many authorities are of the opinion that these four months will be the concluding period of the financial and commercial readjustment, and, as the dregs of the depression will then be drained, they are inclined to believe that the dullness will be tense.

Should it be impossible to operate factories because of the dearth of orders, or uncertainty as to future prices, it will be necessary to devise measures for relief. Prolonged unemployment will leave much distress and suffering in its wake, particularly if the winter is severe. It would also propagate much discontent.

A percentage of the people misunderstand the prevailing depression. There exists a false idea that the industrial stagnation is due to labor troubles. Many persons either are incapable of seeing, or are unwilling to recognize, that stagnation is an economic reaction, which has adversely affected agriculture and trade, as well as manufacture, and which has existed and still exists throughout the world.

Manufacture will remain somewhat inert all winter, it seems, although it may be invigorated to some extent. On the other hand, there appears to be every reason to believe that all lines of industry and trade will start on their normal course next spring. There is full justification for the growing confidence and optimism. It is suggested that the most careful attention should be accorded to conditions which probably will be peculiar to the winter, and that timely action should be taken to ward off dire want and dissatisfaction.

POWDER AND PAINT

Women spent $145,019,100 for cosmetics and perfumes last year, and $44,405,000 for chewing gum. That is a total of more than $189,000,000.

At first glance it seems to be scarcely possible that women would put out $145,019,100 for rouge, powder and paint, and perfumes. But, after scanning the countenances, which must be naturally beautiful, thickly smeared with shades of red and other hues, the second and lasting impression on the mind is that the total must be two or three times larger. The young ladies surely cannot buy all the artificial color with which they decorate their features for so small an amount as $145,019,100.

Not the least art is apparent in the facial make-up of most women. The paint is daubed on the chin, the cheek-bones, the tip of the nose and the forehead. Sometimes a pound or two is spread under the eyes, even on the eye-lids. Young ladies appear to take their idea of this branch of decorative art from flashy billboards and brightly colored advertisements.

A little paint or powder, artistically applied, gives color or tone to the complexion. But daubs of it, smeared on the face, cause the most beautiful women to look ugly.

Men and boys rival women in chewing gum. Not having anything to say, perhaps, they must keep their mouths busy. If gum chewing is a symptom of vacuity of the mind, $44,405,000 tells a deplorable story.

RIDING FIRST CLASS

Will the steamship lines, like the railroads, have a super-first class service and fares? The railroads sell first class transportation, enabling the passenger to ride third class in the smoking car or second class in a coach. The Pullman is really the first class service, entailing a special charge for either seat or berth. Higher fares are charged on special limited trains, which really provide the ideal first class transportation.

The White Star Line announces that it is building two ships which will carry only second and third class, or cabin and third class, passengers. The fares will correspond to the present second and third class. Does this innovation portend that the standard transportation will ultimately be first class, with special service in the super-class? American railroads deemed it to be undemocratic to maintain several classes of transportation service as in Europe. They made their regular service better than the first class in Europe, and then provided special service and operated limited trains de luxe.

THE GAME OF TENNIS

America is supreme in tennis. Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and William T. Tilden hold the world's championship for singles and R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn the world's team championship. The defeat of Ichiya Kumagae and Zenzo Shimidzu, the Japanese luminaries by Williams and Washburn, this week retains the Davis Cup in America for another year.

Representatives of twelve nations participated in the team tournaments. The skilful Japanese, who have a natural aptitude for this strenuous game, gallantly won their way to the finals. Though they won one set in their match with the American team, they were far outclassed by the cup defenders.

Tilden defeated Shimidzu in the singles, and William M. Johnston defeated Kumagae. The only foreign player who seems to be a peer of the American in her class is Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French woman champion, who defaulted recently to Mrs. Mallory.

Soccer football is the sole athletic sport which rivals tennis as an international game. Yet, it has fewer devotees. The popularity of golf is expanding, but this pastime can scarcely be compared with tennis for universality of favor, and it is more of a recreation.

Some people will pay railroad fare to trade in Philadelphia, when they could buy the same stuff for less money here in Bristol.

A Canadian claims to have rediscovered the ancient and long-lost process of tempering copper. Hardening copper will be pretty soft for him financially.

A Squillace, Junk dealer, reads a sign on the side of a wagon filled with watermelons.

And perhaps it is true.

Now that we are used to them we have to admit that those rolled down socks on the flappers do look cool, observed a friend of ours last evening.

Of course fat men have as much right to "trip the light fantastic" as the lean ones but why do they always pick on some poor frail girl to practice their foot work, wails Gertrude, who works in Steel's mill as she limps to work.

Have you seen the knitting girls as they parade Mill and Radcliffe streets? Some night they will get tangled up in their yarn.

Motorists of Bristol who wish to promote the safety movement, will be sure that when they round Pond and Mulberry streets at least one wheel remains on the ground.

Women are said by Dr. Einstein to dominate the entire life of this country. They still allow their husbands however, two or three evenings out each week.

Americans are perfectly free to go over and investigate the Russian soviet government, provided they agree to praise it for everything and not blame it for anything.

No objection to raising letter postage to three cents is manifested by the debtors of Bristol, who are bothered by getting too many bills.

Scientific taxation does not seem to consist so much of lowering the taxes, as in getting the money out of the taxpayer's pocket without his knowing it. This is not so easy as formerly.

You can always persuade congressmen to vote for a good measure by threatening to withhold their pork.

Weak-Kneed Officials Are Destroying the Local Self-Governments.

By J. FOSTER SYMES, U. S. District Attorney for Colorado.

One does not have to be connected with the legal department of the United States government for a great length of time to be impressed with the extent of federal jurisdiction and the powers exercised from Washington over the health, safety, business and morals of the average citizen.

Frightened citizens are too wont to call for outside help, not only to preserve law and order, but to regulate the habits of their fellowmen to the utmost degree. If the village constable will not maintain order, it inevitably follows that the state and national government will, and when this happens, the authority of the smaller political units is permanently crippled. Federal power should be called upon only after all other means have been exhausted.

Weak-kneed local officials are causing this destruction of local self-government, which is going on today, by shirking their public duties and leaving them for the authorities of the larger jurisdiction to perform.

Borough and School
Taxes for 1921

Notice is hereby given that Borough and School taxes for the year 1921 are due and payable to my office, No. 210 Radcliffe street, Bristol, Bucks County, Pa., between the hours of 9 and 12 A. All school tax will be received flat (without any discount) up to and including the 30th day of September, 1921, after which date FIVE PER CENT. WILL BE ADDED THERETO and collected in accordance with the act of Assembly approved May 18th, 1911.

No tax received at night before August 22nd, 1921.

FRED I. KRAFT,
 Tax Collector.

Change of Schedule of the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia
Street Railway Company

Owing to the work being done by the State Highway Commission on Bridge Street, Morrisville, and the difficulty we have in operating our cars at this point; during the time this work is in progress we will discontinue running our cars into Trenton. Commencing with Thursday morning, August 11th our cars will end at the terminus of our line at Morrisville. Arrangements have been made with the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Railway Company to make close connections with our cars, so that our passengers will experience as little inconvenience as possible.

This change also necessitates a change in the running time of our cars. The cars will arrive in Morrisville twenty-five minutes after each hour and will leave thirty-five minutes after the hour. Through cars for Morrisville will leave Torresdale on the hour, and will pass Bath Street, Bristol at thirty-five minutes after the hour.

Half hourly service will be maintained from Torresdale to Tullytown from 6:30 A. M. to 10 A. M., the service will then be hourly until 2 P. M., when the half hour service will again be maintained from 2 P. M. until 10 P. M.

New time tables are ready for distribution.

Trenton, Bristol and Phila. St. Railway Co.

"Cherry asked sharply, "What a little pale. Well, kinder, Lawson made him y' down," Joe said. "And he's come home when the wagon comes down, at three o'clock. He says to tell you 'e's fine!'"

"Oh, thank you, Joe!" Cherry said. She shut the door, feeling weak and rightened. She flew to unpack her bag, hung up her hat and coat, darkened the bedroom and turned down the bed; waited anxiously for Mart's return.

She was deeply concerned over the news from Martin. Cherry met his limp form at the front door, and whisked him into a cool bed and put chopped ice on the aching forehead and got him, grateful and penitent, off to sleep.

For a day or two Martin stayed in bed and Cherry spoiled and petted him, and was praised and thanked for every step she took. After that they took a little trip into the mountains near by, and Cherry sent Alix post-cards that made her sister feel almost a pang of envy.

But then the routine began again, and the fearful heat of midsummer came, too. Red Creek baked in a smother of dusty heat, the trees in the dry orchards, beside the dry road, dropped circles of hot shadow on the clodded, rough earth. Farms dozed under shimmering lines of dazzling air and in the village, from ten o'clock until the afternoon began to wane, there was no stir. Flies buzzed and settled on screen doors, the creek shrunk away between crumbling rocky banks, the butcher closed his shop and milk soured in the bottles.

The Turners and some other families always camped together in the mountains during this season, and they were off when school closed, in an enviable state of ecstasy and anticipation. Cherry had planned to join them, but an experimental week-end was enough. The camp was in the cool woods, truly, but it was disorderly, swarming with children, the tents were small and hot, the whole settlement laughed and rioted and surged to and fro in a manner utterly foreign to her. She returned, to tell Martin that it was "horribly common" and weather the rest of the summer in Red Creek.

Martin sympathized. He had never cared particularly for the Turners; was perfectly willing to keep the friendship within bounds.

He sympathized as little with another friendship she made, some months later, with the wife of a young engineer who had recently come to the mine. Pauline Runyon was a few years older than her husband, a handsome, tall, intense woman, who did everything in an entirely individual way. She took one of the new little bungalows that were being erected in Red Creek "Park," and furnished it richly and inappropriately, and established a tea table and a samovar beside the open fireplace. Cherry began to like better than anything else in the world the hours spent with Pauline.

Pauline read Browning, Francis Thompson and Pater, and introduced Cherry to new worlds of thought. She talked to Cherry of New York, which she loved, and of the men and women she had met there. She sometimes sighed and pushed the bright hair back from Cherry's young and innocent and discontented little face, and said tenderly: "On the stage, my dear—anywhere, anywhere, you would be a fuore!"

And thinking, in the quiet evenings—for Martin's work kept him later and later at the mine—Cherry came to see that her marriage had been a great mistake. She had not been ready for marriage. She would sit on the back steps, as the evenings grew cooler, and watch the exquisite twilight fade, and the sorrow and beauty of life would wring her heart.

A dream of ease and adoration and beauty came to her. She did not visualize any special place, any special gown or hour or person. But she saw her beauty fittingly envied; she saw cool rooms, darkened against this blazing midsummer glare; heard ice clinking against glass; the sound of cultivated voices, of music and laughter. She had had these dreams before, but they were becoming habitual now. She was so tired—so sick—so bored with her real life; it was becoming increasingly harder and harder for her to live with Martin. She was always in a suppressed state of wanting to break out, to shout at him brazenly: "I don't care if your coffee is weak! I like it weak! I don't care if you don't like my hat—I do! Stop talking about yourself!"

Various little mannerisms of his began seriously to annoy her; a rather grave symptom, had Cherry but known it. He danced his big fingers on the handle of the sugar spoon at breakfast, sifting the sugar over his cereal; she had to turn her eyes resolutely away from the sight. He blew his nose, folded his handkerchief, and then brushed his nose with it firmly left and right; she hated the little performance that was never altered. He had a certain mental slowness; would blink at her politely and patiently when she flashed plans or hopes at him: "I don't follow you, my dear!" This made her frantic.

THEATRES

Forrest Theatre

Acting as a jury of experts, to determine upon the faithfulness of the English stage settings for "Sacred and Profane Love," Elsie Ferguson's new Paramount picture which will be shown at the Forrest Theatre today, Sir Gilbert Parker, Elinor Glyn, Edward Knoblock and W. Somerset Maugham, all authors of novels, pronounced them flawless and a complete ratification of the statement of a London newspaper that American pictures delineating English scenes are a "feast of absurdities." Conrad Nagel, Thomas Holding, Helen Dunbar, Winifred Greenwood, Clarissa Selwyn and Howard Gaye comprise an excellent supporting cast for the interpretation of the great Arnold Bennett stage success.

New Colonial Theatre

Do you know that the Mexican Mounted Rurales are just as efficient in their way as the Royal Northwest Mounted Police? See Neal Hart's unique new picture, "Kingfisher's Roost" and learn how the Mexican government tracks down its criminals and outlaws.

No money could buy any information about "Kingfisher." No man knew whence he came nor when he went. No one had ever been found who could even describe his appearance. And yet he was the most notorious outlaw along the Mexican border. See the working out of this fascinating mystery in "Kingfisher's Roost," featuring Neal Hart, America's Pal. "Kingfisher's Roost"—a romantic mystery, in a romantic setting of the hills and valleys of Old Mexico.

Gladys Walton will be at the New Colonial Theatre on Monday in the snappiest screen story of her spectacular career. It is called "The Man Tamer," and was written by John Barton Oxford. Harry B. Harris directed it.

The story required that a complete three-ring circus with all the fixings from elephants to peanuts be created at the world's film capital. The audience filling the circus seats, was largely composed of visitors to Universal City from all over the country, who availed themselves of the unique opportunity to witness and participate in the making of a picture with one of their favorite stars.

As Mary O'Brien, daughter of an old animal trainer, the star is seen in the lions' cage with her father. How she later takes the worthless son of a rich man and reforms him, just as she breaks the spirit of snarling beasts, gives the story an unusual twist that brings it to a forceful climax.

Rex Roselli, who plays the role of the girl's father is the dean of American animal trainers; C. B. Murphy who appears as Miss Walton's assistant in her animal act, was for years a noted master of the arena. Roscoe Karns plays opposite the star as her leading man. William Welsh, Parker J. McConnell and C. Norman Hammond also are in the cast.

George Fitzmaurice, one of the best Paramount directors, who produced "Experience" and "On With the Dance," is now in Paramount's London studio. He has his own cameraman with him, and the first of a series of pictures he will make is "Three Live Ghosts," from the Broadway success of last season. Later Mr. Fitzmaurice will do "The Man From Home." Booth Tarkington's famous play.

John S. Robertson, the director whose genius was responsible for "Sentimental Tommy" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," is now working in the London studio producing "Perpetua" from a play by Dion Clayton Calthrop.

"Besides the Bonnie Brier Bush," Ian MacLaren's famous Scotch story is now being produced in Scotland by Donald Crisp. "Dangerous Lies," an original photoplay by E. Phillips Oppenheim, has just been finished in London by Paul Powell.

More and more motion pictures are becoming international because the American film enthusiast is no longer content with the oft-photographed hills of Hollywood or the locations of Fort Lee.

RIDDLES.

Why is a candle wick like the city of Athens? Because it is in the middle of Greece (grease).

What fish is often used as a weapon in a duel? Sword fish.

What is most like a hen stealing? A cock robin.

Why is a kiss like a rumor? Because it travels from mouth to mouth.

What part of a tree is most like an elephant? The trunk.

Where did Noah strike the first nail in the Ark? On the head.

Time Enough.

"Am I right in surmising that you have something of serious import to say to my daughter?"

"Oh, no, sir. I'm merely going to propose to her. I'll talk over the serious details with you after the wedding."—Detroit Times

Boston Men Sold Like Slaves

Fifty jobless men were placed on the auction block on Boston Commons. Stripped to the waist, after they declared their willingness to work by standing before a crowd of thousands, offering their services to the highest bidder. The good points of the men, including many war veterans, unable to find employment, were pointed out by Urban Ledoux, philanthropic worker, who conducted the sale. Ledoux in issuing notices to employers about the "slave-market," requested them to be on hand to "buy honest - to - God Americans," anxious to work for their keep. The photo shows Ledoux auctioning one of the "slaves."

Judge Ryan Sentences

Other stops were made and in the meantime, the loot was left at the hotel of John Neubert, Jr., at New Galena.

Neubert purchased the loot for $5 and a gold watch. Neubert was arrested for receiving stolen goods and at a hearing before Justice Silas Myers last week, State Trooper Petomis of the Quakertown station, said that Neubert told him that he knew he was buying stolen goods, as the boys had told him before the money was paid over.

Neubert denied at the hearing that he had been informed before the purchase, claiming it was after he paid the money over that the youths said the goods were stolen.

It was at the Henry K. Fretz farm that the theft was discovered the morning following the robbery. Fretz reported it to the State police, and the boys were arrested the next day.

The other plaintiffs in the case did not know of their losses until informed by the State police after the boys had confessed to Officer Petomis.

Judge Ryan suspended sentence on all but the Fretz theft.

ZION LUTHERAN NOTES

The Bensalem Methodist Church tomorrow will hold special services commemorating the 111th anniversary of the church, which is located on the Hulmeville road, will be crowded with visitors. The choir of Bristol, Cornwells and Hulmeville Methodist churches will participate in a musical program.

In the morning at 11 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. William Powick, Dean of Norrisdown Business College, will preach. The Rev. J. J. Bingham, pastor of Bristol Methodist Church, will make the address at the afternoon service at 2:30 o'clock. At the meeting in the evening at 7:45 o'clock, Dr. J. C. Petrie, of Philadelphia, will be the speaker.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 the usual session of the Zion Lutheran Sunday School will be held. This will be in charge of George B. West, superintendent. At 10:30 the morning church service will be held with the pastor, the Rev. T. Bahn Thomas who will preach. His subject will be "Inner Man Strength." At the evening service Mr. Thomas will talk on the subject of "God's Departure from the Soul."

Church activities among the members of Zion Lutheran are resuming.

The Ladies Aid Society held a very successful meeting last Thursday evening at the home of Miss Carrie Hendricksen, on McKinley street. Among the many things considered was that of holding a saur kroust supper in the parish house, on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, October 22nd.

Harvest Home services will be held on Sunday September 18th.

Rally Day will be held October 8th. In the Bristol Methodist church, tomorrow the services will be held at the usual times. The pastor, the Rev. J. J. Bingham, will officiate.

For Two People.

A little girl called at a grocery and asked for a quart of vinegar to be put in a gallon jug. This being done, she asked for another quart to be put into the same vessel.

"Why didn't you ask for a half a gallon in the first place?" asked the grocer.

"Because," answered the small shopper "it's for two different persons."

Frog Eye Smallest Camera.

The smallest camera in the world which has actually "taken" pictures is doubtless the eye of the frog. It has been found that if a frog is kept in the dark for some time the retina of the eye on being dissected is found to have a purple reddish color which fades away or becomes bleached on exposure to daylight.

If the eye be placed in front of a window and left there or "exposed" for some time, and then fixed in a 4 per cent solution of alum, the optogram is partially fixed and retains an inverted picture of the window with its cross bars as pictured on the retina. —Illustrated World.

White Feathers.

No white pigments have been found in feathers, and the whiteness of white feathers is ascribed to total reflection of light from their exposed surfaces. Some have supposed the reflection to be from air spaces, or bubbles, in the feather structure, but one authority contends that the white effect is mainly dependent, as in the case of snow or powdered glass, upon the small size of the structural elements. These have a large number of surfaces so placed for any position of the eye that there is a maximum reflection to the eye, and almost no absorption by the unpigmented feather substance.
